Should private law be national?

While internationalisation of society stimulates the emergence of common political and legal frameworks for a better coordination of economic and social relations, the field of law which is devoted to the regulation of those relations – i.e. private law – remains firmly bound to a national level. The seminar aims at unfolding the ideological underpinnings and the cultural-historical foundations of the link between private law and the national idea. Seminar background reading is available on <http://docente.unife.it/claudia.amodio/european-private-law-seminars.zip/view>.

Guido Comparato (PhD in Law from the University of Amsterdam, Bachelor and Master of laws degree from the University of Ferrara) is currently a Postdoctoral researcher in the Law Department of the European University Institute (since 2011).
